When Spain's Royal Baby is Born.

King Alfonso's Young Queen
Sadly Distressed By the Shocking Ordeal Which the Absurd
Court Etiquette
Compels Her to Submit to.

Madrid, Spain, March 28.
THE birth of an heir to the throne of Spain is evidently expected in April, but the event is viewed with anxious misgivings by the young Queen. Instead of the joyous anticipations which first filled her heart, she has come to have a sort of horror of the ordeal through which she must pass.

What makes this event of more interest perhaps than any other birth in the world today is the extraordinary publicity with which it will be attended. This publicity, according to modern and especially American ideas, is nothing less than revolting. It is part of the Court etiquette of the most ceremonious Court in the world, and has been handed down practically unchanged since the middle ages. It utterly destroys the privacy of what most civilized people regard as the most intimate and delicate of all family occasions. It must cause untold distress and embarrassment to the mother, if she possesses the most rudimentary feelings of modesty, and must seriously endanger her life.

all the members of the Government, the Ambassadors of foreign powers, representatives of the two houses of the legislature, the Mayors of Madrid and of various municipalities that have a historic connection with the Spanish monarchy.

As soon as the probable hour of the birth is known, a collection is sent to all these functionaries, and they hasten to the Royal Palace. These important persons fill the great saloon, which looks on to the Queen's bed chamber, while the stairs of the palace are crowded with legislators and municipal councillors and the courtyard is filled with ordinary Madrileños.

Imagine the distressing sensations of the poor Queen at such a time in the presence of a large assemblage of men of all kinds, most of whom are total strangers to her!

One purpose of this publicity is to make sure that the child is really born to the Queen, and not a changeling, for, at least in earlier times, the people would have considered themselves very seriously defrauded if a baby not of the royal blood had been palmed off on them.

Etiquette and national custom require that the doctor in attendance on the Queen shall be a Spaniard, even though he may have had no previous experience with her. Queen Victoria has had this rule modified so far that her English family doctor is permitted to work with his official Spanish colleague.

As soon as the birth takes place a salute of twenty-one guns, if the child is a boy, is fired from the palace grounds to announce the fact to the people.

The baby is immediately placed on a huge gold plate and handed to King Alfonso. In this way the King carries the tiny, blinking, new baby to the head of the line of waiting functionaries, at the head of which is the Prime Minister. The Spanish doctor keeps his hand on the right-hand side of the gold plate and the English doctor stands on the left. Accompanying the King are the Duke of Borjomayor, who is Majordomo of the Palace and the highest of all court functionaries, and the Duchess of Medina de la Torres, who is Mistress of the Robes and the chief female official of the household. The Spanish nurse, in national costume, stands near at hand, in order to render expert service when required.

The King marches up to the old Prime Minister and shows him the baby. The old gentleman bows profoundly, adjusts his eyeglasses, and examines the little red infant carefully. Then, if his examination warrants it, he exclaims:

"It is a Prince! God bless the Prince!"

Prolonged applause from the line greets this remark. The King passes down the long line of officials and Ambassadors and exhibits the baby to each of them in turn. As the baby is presented each of them bows profoundly.

Finally the baby is shown to a notary, who has a book prepared relating the ancestry and parentage of the child for the last five hundred years. He now makes an entry of the sex of the child, the date, hour and place of its birth. This is witnessed by the Archbishop of Toledo and the Majordomo of the Palace.

When this task is accomplished the King hands the baby over to the Duchess of Medina de la Torres, Mistress of the Robes, who may, if she sees fit, entrust the infant to the nurse. The child has now been exhibited to a great many more strange old men than is good for him. He is at last handed back to his unfortunate mother.

Etiquette and custom require that the Queen of Spain shall not nurse her own child. According to immemorial custom, a wetnurse is obtained from the Province of the Asturias, in Northern Spain, where the royal family originally came from, and where the people are very vigorous. A nurse possessing the requisite qualifications has already been engaged for Queen Victoria. The reasons for entrusting the baby to a nurse are that the Province of the Asturias has a historic right to care for the royal progeny, that the Queen may not be capable of nursing her child, and that, being a foreigner, she may not be disposed to give it that care which a child of the blood royal of Spain requires.

The nurse, or "ama," as she is called in Spanish, wears a short velvet skirt, trimmed with scarlet velvet and gold braid; low shoes, with silver buckles; silk stockings, satin apron, gold-embroidered bolero over lawn chemise, hair in the Spanish national style and knotted behind under flowing ribbons; long earrings, and a shower of chains about her neck.

A professional nurse has also been engaged for Queen Victoria. She is Miss Gertrude Bunting, of Nottingham, England. She has a high reputation for efficiency on occasions of this character. She is a Catholic, and recently acted as nurse at the birth of the Marquis of Bute's daughter, Lady Mary Stuart. The Marquis is one of the richest noblemen in England, and a leading Catholic.

The Queen of Spain's ordeal does not end with the

What the Thaw Case is All About

The Astonishing, Wide-spread Influence on the Stage, in Commercial Life and in Very Odd Ways of the Nesbit-Thaw-White Trag-edy Romance.

OUT of the great Harry Thaw trial, and the astonishing and tragic as all circumstances are, there has come a new significant phase that is heard in every class of people, in every place where newspapers circulate.

An abashed witness testified that at the time when Harry Thaw killed Stanford White he was the victim of a "brain storm."

Accordingly "brain storm" has become part of the popular vocabulary. If a wife lectures her husband at 2 o'clock in the morning, he calls her "brain storm."

The fashionable clergyman who lectures his congregation on the sin of extravagance has "brain storm."

The creditor who urges payment of his little bill, the doctor who suggests a second, the policeman who won't accept graft, protesting strap hangers in the trolley cars, Mr. "Common People" denouncing his slights from greedy corporations, the President of the United States, when an aspirant out from under the thumb of a railway magnate—all have "brain storm."

At the Barrow & Bailey big game picnic there is a frank admission that it is almost appropriately labeled "Brain Storm," and is the ultimate cause of it.

There are other influences growing out of this most celebrated of all murder trials, which have marked the modern era. Several months ago this newspaper showed how the incident leading up to the murder of the famous architect had been utilized in a melodrama for the stage, in which the names of the characters were only slightly disguised—"Harold Gray" for Harry Thaw, "Stanford Black" for Stanford White, and so on. The stage scenes included the architect's studio in the tower of the Madison Square Garden and the action portrayed the dragging of a young girl by "Stanford Black."

Despite the alleged sensational aspect of the plot incident, it has served for the model of a stage scene in another play quite recently. At a theatre in Denver, Colo., the stage scene showed a party guilty of murder in a room where there was a picture of a woman in whose center was placed an immense pie. The actor making the tableau impersonated the murdered architect, and in calling his "foster" father in the pie about to open was supposed to use the words of Stanford White at the original pie supper.

At a given signal a pretty girl, a professional dancer, burst through the crowd of the pie, liberating also half a dozen doves. Here there was a disruption from the scene. The men about the table looked and cheered the "pie girl," but the scene from the table, musician, and, after a few moments, disappeared from the scene.

At least one hundred to a thousand have featured the "pie girl" episode associated with the Thaw murder. A few weeks ago a supper party of some of the actors of the Alpha Epsilon college fraternity, given to poorly contrived by the entrance of eight waiters staggering under the weight of a saucer platter that is heard in every class of people, in every place where newspapers circulate.

The great construction was increased by the little speech made by the master of ceremony.

"You are now, brethren, about to be transported to the Madison Square Garden, where the pie is opened upon the table at which the preceding murder was committed."

Where the pie was opened, however, there was a sign of relief. The policeman who won't accept graft, protesting strap hangers in the trolley cars, Mr. "Common People" denouncing his slights from greedy corporations, the President of the United States, when an aspirant out from under the thumb of a railway magnate—all have "brain storm."

SCENE ON THE STAGE OF A DENVER, COLORADO, THEATRE, DUPLICATING THE "PIE GIRL" EPISODE.

Her about all the tables, mingled with laughter. A pretty girl did rise out of the pie, but she was made of pink and white, and was stuffed with sweetmeats, a doll, which the master of ceremony solemnly adopted.

A quartette of Anshurst College students who had industriously read reports of the great trial were then directed in their power way of utilizing similar material. They went to Hollywood, Mass., and volunteered their services for "sanitary night" at a local theatre, which were accepted.

When their turn came one of their number walked on the stage and announced that "The Great Thaw Trial" would be reproduced unexpurgated before the theatre manager came out of the trance, one of the students as Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was being cross-examined by another representing District Attorney Jerome, with so much more frankness and directness than character. At the stage manager intervened, the white was and stuffed with sweetmeats, a doll, which the master of ceremony solemnly adopted.

The college authorities, hearing of the outrage, were scandalized. They succeeded in identifying the culprit, who were forthwith expelled.

In Harry Thaw's will, which was admitted in evidence, there was a clause setting aside certain of his estate for the benefit of young girls who were liable to be victimized in the manner he charged against Stanford White in Evelyn Nesbit's case.

The fact of this bequest had not been public for more than a week when J. H. Schuchman, president of the Union Trust Company, of Cincinnati, announced a gift of a quarter of a million dollars to be held in trust for the benefit of the young women of the United States. The gift, he said, was designed as a memorial to his daughter, who had lately been killed in an automobile accident.

The income—about $1500 a year—is to be used, "in fitting manner," for the duties of war.

That is sufficient to show the connection with Thaw's will.

In many parts of the country, since the beginning of the Thaw trial, the "pie girl" episode has been featured in similar cases to an extent never before noticed. Altogether the Thaw case will have its bearing on many pages of American history.

RAIN STORM

THE LAUGHABLE BARNUM AND BAILEY CIRCUS AUTOMOBILE DEMONSTRATION OF WHAT "RAIN STORM" REALLY IS.

A black and white photograph of six male acrobats in various contorted poses, wearing light-colored shorts. The poses include standing with arms raised, handstands, and extreme backbends. The image is framed by a decorative border.

A male nurse in the Battle Creek (Mich.) sanitarium, a lifelong advocate of meat abstinence, scored a record of 2,400 knee bendings. The record of the abstainers in the leg-raising test was not so superior to that of the meat-eaters as in the others. The best score made by an abstainer was 1,000 leg raisings, that of a meat-eater 930. In general the records show little difference in this test, but the abstainers have what little advantage there is on record.

The experiment furnished a severe test of the claims of the flesh-abstainers. The comparisons were planned—one between flesh-eating athletes and flesh-abstaining sedentary workers. The results would indicate that the users of low-protein and the non-flesh dietaries have far greater endurance than those who are accustomed to the ordinary American diet.

"And have you heard so and not her say this and that. Yes, he painted her portrait, you know, and fell in love with her. He is very devoted, and Madame Eames so beautiful, too. Ah, but cold as ice!"

ing about in the second dress before the unassuming, just as Julian Story, splendid of his wife's journey to release him, had slipped off to his suite at the St. James Hotel, just then, at the one ordained moment, gentle Prince Tsan Fung and most serene and questioning Sir Tal Hui Tzu, the Imperial Chinese Commissioners, still minus their interpreter, rolled politely up to the Bellevue-Stratford and smiled amiably toward the elevator.

There had been all kinds of strange people in the hotel lobby that evening. Witnesses of the days of "M. Marguerite," the Chinese, Pliereux, and others out of strange times and ages, and the elevator boy, who had just come on that night, really wasn't to blame.

All of these strange people had been masks, and while the two smiling Chinese men to their rich robes didn't, that did not mean strange to the elevator boy.

"Oh," he said, "you don't need any masks, do you?"

The Imperial Commissioners bowed and smiled again.

trouble to her entrance. She looked at the mirror ring about the two Chinese and laughed.

"I'll just slip in and be only a mask for a time," she said to herself. "That will be fairly."

It will be seen that the instant of the actress had gotten the better of the contrivance. It was easy. In a moment she had joined hands with the dancers, and was waiting about the puzzled Orientals.

It was only another moment later that the smiling interpreter, appeared, rescued his charges, explained matters all around and had the Commissioners, who did not understand at all, to their rooms.

Miss Eames, now a part of the throng, thought now since it would be to manage a bit longer instead of being homesick. While she was thinking this she found herself in an above, where sat Little Red Hood and Mrs. Pimpouder, who were

"Oh, Marguerite," called Little Red Hood to Mrs. Pimpouder, "I know you come over here."

Miss Eames, slightly amused, came. "What's the matter?" "I wonder where Mr. Story is. I don't see a Romeo about. And there are three Juliettes. Wonder which is she?"

Miss Eames, a lot puzzled, said, as the unknown Marguerite: "Was he to wear a Romeo costume?"

Miss Eames, all the actress instinct to the front and struggling with the artistic temperament, began to widen.

nothing tangible—only the serenest tongue could that feeds on itself and is strong enough to destroy.

Miss Eames, singing over in New York, had received news of her husband's illness. She would surely have to go and help him out. She arranged for a special train to carry her to Philadelphia immediately after the opera. A cab waited for her at the door of the Metropolitan Opera House. Unluckily she sent for a doctor on the way, although she didn't think it. A moment later they stood at the door, beyond which were Arline Story's quarters. The whole gay crowd swooped down on the Orientals, and with shouts and cries, joined hands and danced about them.

All of these strange people had been masks, and while the two smiling Chinese men to their rich robes didn't, that did not mean strange to the elevator boy.

"SHE WRITES TO ME EVERY DAY," REFLECTS THE HUSBAND, AS HE SITS BY HIS LONELY DOMESTIC FIREPLACE AND CONTEMPLATES THE VACANT CHAIR BESIDE HIM."

Soon the singer had all the guests. She was far from perfectly furious. The artistic temperament had emerged with a vengeance, but, perfect actress that she is, not a sign did she make. The hour for unmasking was over and she slipped away.

Miss Eames, the perfect hostess, made no sign that there was tempest raging within her. Only after the last guest had departed did she send Mr. Story at the St. James Hotel and there was a bitter quarrel. After it was over the singer went to the Bellevue-Stratford to sleep and the next afternoon departed for New York without having seen the artist.

In 1502 it is reported that thirty-eight galleons were engaged in 1502 to convey from Portsmouth to London the gold and jewels taken by Blake from two Spanish galleons retreating from Mexico.

In 1502 fifteen galleons were captured in Vigo Bay and yielded a great profit of $10,000,000.

In the year 1547, long after Blake's war, the English vessels captured and shipped a Spanish treasure ship, which the Spaniards valued at $2,000,000, the crew estimated $2,000,000, the jewels $1,200,000 and the Vassal $700,000.

In 1562 a Spanish treasure ship returning from Peru was captured and yielded $4,750,000, the jewels $1,000,000 and the crew $200,000, of which the owners took $300,000 and the seamen $100,000.

In 1584 $2,000,000 in the same year a Spanish galleon returning $5,000,000 in bullion was taken by a British

Treasure Scene

The records of the British admiralty show the following curious distribution of prize money from the capture of the Spanish ship Hermione, of Cadiz, on May 17, 1759, by the English sea-faring vessels Favorite and Active, and the American sloop Swallow: $324,000 to the captain of the Active, $332,265; to each of the three non-commissioned officers, $63,000; to each of the eight warrant officers, $21,600; to each of the twenty petty officers, $9,000; to each of the 150 seamen and marines, $2,425; total Active's share, $1,269,750. To the captain of the Favorite, $254,300; to each of the two commissioned officers, $64,800; to each of the seven warrant officers, $20,160; to each of the eight petty officers, $8,000; to each of the 100 seamen and marines, $2,425; total Favorite's share, $992,975.

It seems successful treasure expedition was that headed by William Phillips, who was born in Wootton Bassett, England, and came to America in 1635. He was in England to procure means to recover a Spanish treasure ship wrecked near the Bahamas. He was successful in interesting the Duke of Albemarle, who gave him the Indian name of "Pipps" and a number of his friends, to subscribe £200 each. Phillips showed great ingenuity for that period in constructing diving apparatus, and he was able to recover the treasure. He was highly successful, and carried back to England £130,000. Of this $50,000 went to the Duke of Albemarle, $20,000 to Phillips, $20,000 to his friends, and $40,000 to the Duke of £200. It sometimes seemed that Phillips had already helped himself to a just share of the treasure while on the expedition. He was appointed Governor of Massachusetts, appointed high sheriff of Massachusetts and eventually Governor of the colony.

Meignin, the buccaner, who gained as much as $100,000,000 from his exploits, was in the employ of the government and was created Governor of Jamaica, and is reputed to have hidden all his deposits of treasure in the West Indies. He is said to have been so successful that he would set have carried off the bulk of his prize.

der to the bank. A tradition says that he inspired $200,000 for the expedition. The Spaniards made great efforts to discover why he hid his treasure without result.

According to an old Spanish tradition, treasure was hidden at $400,000 in gold, silver and precious jewels lies at the bottom of Lake Guatavita, in Colombia. It is supposed to have been buried there by the great chief Muzco of the country. The Spaniards have been searching for it for centuries, but have failed from the Spanish invaders. It is a noteworthy fact that a similar belief prevails concerning treasure buried in the interior of the continent of South America in various parts of South America, and it is hardly likely that such persistent beliefs can be without foundation. The Spaniards have obtained ruined settlements in the interior of the northern part of South America, which are visited by white men only on expeditions to discover the ruins. They will be considered. Treasure to the amount of $300,000 which formerly belonged to the Incas is said to be hidden in the interior of the continent.

When the Armada, the greatest fleet ever assembled, was sent by Spain to conquer England, and the English fleet was defeated, the Spaniards landed on the terrible west coast of Scotland, which one long line of jagged rocks, beaten by the waves of the Atlantic. Among rocks, the treasure was hidden. The Duke of Argill had offered £500,000 in gold, intended to pay the ransom and be used in the invasion of England. She went ashore in Tormore, Scotland, and found the treasure. The Duke of Argill, she sank in deep water, which runs right up to the shore. Mull was then completely isolated from the world and people in the area were not allowed to leave. The treasure hunters they heard it from Spanish sources. An effort is now being made under the direction of the Duke of Argill to recover the treasure sailors.

Many treasure-hunters are convinced that a great level-laid on Coos Bay, a little spot on the coast of Oregon, is the site of a treasure. This hoard consists partly of valuables hidden by the Spanish when they were finally driven by the Indians out of western Oregon. The treasure was hidden by earlier buccanniers. The Spanish deposit alone is valued at $100,000,000. Two expeditions fitted up in England, called the Coos Bay Expedition, are now being fitted out. The expedition created either panic from carrying on the work.

Engine, Pump, etc., of the "Golden Gate"

One of the greatest treasures ever recovered in modern times, although it is rarely recorded in the history of the world, was the engine, pump, etc., of the "Golden Gate," which was found in the ruins of ancient Tyre. It was discovered by a French engineer, M. de la Roche, while excavating the city of Tyre. He found it in a vaulted chamber, which was built of stone and which on account of their artistic and antiquarian value were worth an infinitely greater sum than the engine itself.

It is expected that the ruins of Herculaneum, the city of Pompeii, will yield as many treasures as the ruins of Tyre. Herculaneum was the most luxurious city of ancient Italy, and the favorite summer resort of the great Roman nobles. It was destroyed by the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in the year 79 A.D. The city was buried under a layer of ash and pumice, and the ruins of the city are now visible. The ruins of Herculaneum are under forty feet of volcanic ash and pumice, and the city is now being excavated by the Italian Government. 5 NEW EXPEDITIONS TO THE DEPTHS, THE CAVES AND THE Lost 'Tears of the Virgin'

PERHAPS the most peculiar story for fact in the same degree as fiction ever recorded is that of the Empress of Austria. She had been ordered for the purpose of relieving the pearl necklace of the Empress of Austria.

The Empress, who was the hand of the emerald, L'Opéat at Geneva, possessed one place of jewelry which she valued above all her rest collection. This was the pearl necklace known as the "Pearl of the Virgin." It was an exquisite triple string of 200 pearls, with an additional pendant, every one of which was the product of the others and of an exquisite white luster.

The Empress was an extraordinary woman, probably the most extraordinary woman of the modern European royal family in the nineteenth century. She worshipped her own beauty. Perhaps none will say that other women have been more vain, but it would be very difficult to find one who carried this worship of treasure was undoubtedly more conspicuous than in recent ones. It is remembered when Attila the Hun, who had plundered and the whole civilized world, died, a surgeon aside and he was buried beneath all his slaves and $50,000,000 of treasure. Perhaps, this commercial class of the world, destroyed by the Romans, the children of their spoil brought it, and it is therefore that $100,000,000 in new lies hidden be-this position, Colonel Taylor ordered the

A great deal of money in gold coins was sent to the Indians to pay for their land, and when they were about to leave, they took them upon the outbreak of war. The sum of gold was at one time recovered in Iowa, hidden at the time of the war. One thousand dollars is believed to be concealed in the hills.

One of the greatest treasures ever recovered in human times, Heracleum, is rarely reported in the light, was that found by the great archaeologist Ignatius Schliemann in the ruins of ancient Troy. When he excavating the city of Troy he found one of the greatest treasures of the world, which on which an account of their artistic and antiquarian values were worth an infinitely greater number than that.

It is expected that the ruins of Heracleum, the companion in destruction of Pompeii, will yield a much greater sum than Troy in jewels alone. Heracleum was the most luxurious city of ancient Rome, the last flourishing city of ancient Roman millenaires of Julius Caesar's time. It contained much of the choicest spoil of the whole of that period. Heracleum lies under forty feet of volcanic ash, and it is not until the ruins have been touched by the archaeologist. The objects of great concern in it may well be worth $20,000,000.

The ancient regalia of the Saxon and early Norman Kings of England, including the crown of Alfred the Great, which had been taken to the Continent by the Danes, were brought back to England through it, became two considerable modern cities lie above and must not be disturbed.

Home life hurried because the Rebel River, which has been thrown in these districts, is still afloat. About 100 objects is believed to be the famous one which branched candlestick from the Temple at Jerusalem brought to Rome by the Emperor Titus. Plans are being made to send the objects to the United States. There is great difficulty in locating the site of the deposit. It would be a very modest estimate to value this collection at $500,000.

There are many objects undoubtedly more rare and more ancient than these is recent ones. It is recorded that when Attila the Hun, who had plundered Rome and the waste civilised world, died, he left his treasure to his wife, who was believed to have buried it with all his slaves and $5,000,000 of treasure. Before Carthage, the greatest commercial city of the ancient times, was destroyed by the Romans, the city was believed to have been buried and the treasure was believed that $100,000,000 now lies hidden beneath the African sands in which the city once stood.

considerable amounts of gold have been lost or buried within the boundaries of the United States in recent times and never recovered. In 1830 Colonel Zachary Taylor, of the United States Army, to pay his soldiers for their services in the Indian wars, sent gold coins to the Indians in the Territory of Iowa. In consequence of this dangerous position, Colonel Taylor ordered that the money be buried. The soldiers who buried it were all killed by the Indians, and the location of the money has never been discovered to this day. A great deal of money in gold coins was sent to the Sac and Fox Indians to pay for their land and buried by them upon the outbreak of war. The sum of $40,000 in gold was at one time recovered in Iowa and the gold coins were sent to the War Department. A thousand dollars is believed to be concealed here now.

In 1830 the Anthony Wayne went down with 300 barrels of wine and whiskey. Here it is interesting to recall that the present sherry ever sold in England had been recovered from a ship that had been wrecked on the North coast of Spain. It is therefore some encouragement to this state to hunt for alcoholic treasures in State.

REASONS

The Lutetians dispatched at dead of night from the British squadron blockading the coast of France and started on her northward journey. On the following day a severe northerly gale sprang up. The Lutetia, with the other ships, began to make headway rapidly. Half the crew were kept working the pumps, while the other half tended the sails.

The position of the ship grew worse and worse, but the captain never dreamed of turning back or running for shelter. If he had turned, he would probably have been driven on the French shore or into a French port, and to have fallen into Napoleon's hands with his country's treasure would have been worse than death. He was now bent on his head to the north which increased in fury as the night came on, until waves smothered the leaking ship and sent her to the bottom. The wreck occurred within sight of the Several attempts have been made to recover the lost treasure from the Lutine, but they have failed owing to the impossibility of maintaining the wrecking outfit on the surface of this stormy sea. Conditions have now changed on account of the recent progress made in submarine boat construction. Under the direction of Mr. Lake, a boat will be constructed which can be sent down to the bottom, carrying all the necessary working apparatus. The engineers and divers can then study the situation at their leisure through the windows of their submarine craft, undisturbed by the storms that lash the surface. The divers will probably load the gold, when recovered, upon the submarine, and the vessel will carry it straight into port.

the engine set up and the big suction pump tested—on the very night when everything was ready and work was to begin. At midnight a tremendous storm suddenly came up, tumbled the engine and pump in to the sea and tore the pier to pieces. The strange thing about it is that storms are never known there at this season, and this was the season, for the first time, of hurricanes and of limited area.

The disaster to the treasure-seekers is attributed by the superstitious Mexicans to the ghost of the mad negro king that guards the treasure-laden wreck lying off the coast. The natives predicted pre-

At last the Golden Gate, caught on the crest of a great wave, struck on shore amid the breakers. The burning masts fell and killed many. One last boat remained unburned. Twenty men leaped into her with their gold. The tackle broke, the boat fell, water and snatching at plumbton bags of gold. (In this account they were afraid of searching for the treasure, and to this day not one of them dared touch the treasure.)

But the gold is there and it exercises an unusual attraction for adventurous Americans. This year Captain J. W. Johnson, one of the most experienced working stoves in the United States, made a most determined effort to recover the treasure. He was accompanied by a couple of men, and a supply of San Francisco capitalists, and sailed from that city for Manzanillo in the wrecking schooner Azusa. She was equipped with the machinery for submerging

The loss of the Golden Gate was one of the most tragic occurrences in California history. Three hundred successful miners had taken passage from California for New York. The Golden Gate was a big and famous old steamship for those times, and almost every passenger was worth a fortune.

The ship had a great steel strong box, built especially to carry the gold of the passengers. When they came aboard in San Francisco the majority of them, with their gold in bags and dust and in tin cans, put the keeper of the steel strong box. There were, of course, however, who kept their treasure in their own pockets and every one carried a nonpareil, usually in a heavy leather belt about his waist.

Everyone was prosperous and happy. Dancing and playing of wine passed the time on the long trip to Panama, where they were to cross the Isthmus and continue their trip for New York.

It was in the gray of the dawn one morning, as the revelers were leaving the smoking room, fire was discovered in the forward hold. All hands were sent to work pumping water into the hold, but the flames ate through the wooden bow and the sudden draught caused the fire to burst through the deck into the midship section of the ship, all in a moment.

Captain Hudson gave up the fight and bearded his skin for the Mexican shore, where he could see a long strip of sandy beach. The passengers were all gathered on deck, most of them had pulled up their waists, and he demanded that the strong room be opened.

At each man might take what belonged to him. Captain Hudson assured them that the ship was not in danger. The men were not reassured. The fire gained faster than anyone expected. The air bubbled from the seams and expanded, proving that the fire was halfway to the stern. There the fire was now. The men were now slowly approaching crack line. In front were the men playing the foam streams from the pumps into the roaring fire. The ship was now a wall of fire. A shift of wind drove the flames and sparks along the deck. The captain was driven from the bridge and the passengers cowered in the extreme stern. When the deck was clear of smoke for a minute it seemed that the ship was saved. The flames were being kept by them therefore cut off. Nickerling moved and began to pour from the after hatchway, showing that the fire was nearing the stern. The ship was now burning from the stern. An army of rats poured on the deck from the cabin companion way. The first mate hurried below and drove on deck two women who were

SAM LOYD'S PIG-PEN PUZZLE

TO our puzzle solvers we offer this week an interesting little puzzle of the farmer and his five pigs. In the picture is shown a pig pen divided into six compartments. The farmer has each of his five pigs numbered—1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, and for each pig there is a separate pig pen. Now these little pigs have wandered from their own pens, and the farmer wishes to get them back again. Each of the pig pens has connecting entrances to the other.

Now, the idea of the puzzle is this: Can you tell us the least number of moves the farmer made to get the pigs back into their right pens without having any two pigs in the same pen at the same time? The sixth pen is empty and can be used in moving the little pigs around.

To 1,000 of our little puzzlers who send us in the best answers to this interesting puzzle we will send 1,000 of the new puzzle books, if they will mail their answers to:

A Shameful, Endless Procession

Uncle Sam, Representing the People, Says to Himself: "A Fine, Powerful Array. They Own a Good Deal."

I WONDER WHAT I OWN?"

There is a good thing. It tells a serious truth simply and strikingly. Every American should study it, and think earnestly about it.

The men passing before Uncle Sam, each with his boastful and truthful sign, represent American history and conditions as they are today.

A small group of men, with Morgan at the head, DO CONTROL THE IRON OF THE UNITED STATES. Of all metals the most precious and necessary, iron is essential to the development of the world. It is just as necessary to modern civilization as the skeleton hidden away in your body is necessary to your existence and activity. Without that skeleton you would lie flat on the ground, a mass of helpless muscle, nerves and flesh.

The men that control the iron of the United States control the skeleton, the backbone of the United States. AND THEY ARE A MENACE THROUGH EXTORTION TO ALL OF THE PEOPLE.

Rockefeller stands at the head of a small, selfish organization that controls the oil of the United States and the coal. The oil and coal are so important to the country as the heat in your body is important to you. Take away the heat from your body, and your life ends. Put the life heat of your body under the control of an outside agency and you are not safe for a moment.

The oil and the coal represent the heat, the light, the power of the United States. It is a disgrace to the United States, a menace to all of the people, that the power and the heat should be at the mercy of a few men, able and willing to extort the last dollar.

It is true also that a few men—five of them altogether with Harriman, the ablest and the most cunning, perhaps—control all the railroads of the United States. The veins and the arteries are no more important to your body than the railroads to the country. As your veins and arteries send the life blood throughout your system, and all parts of your body depend upon impartial, equal service of the veins and the arteries, THIS NATION DEPENDS UPON THOSE IRON VEINS AND ARTERIES CALLED THE RAILROADS. They distribute wealth and life; they can starve or build up as their owners please.

The other men and the other signs in this picture tell truthful, striking stories of Trust control of population and government.

Ryan DOES own the street car companies, the gas companies and other life necessities, and as the recent shameful Harriman-Roosevelt scandal has proved, RYAN ALSO CONTROLS THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT THROUGH HIS LAWYER, AND THERE'S LAWYER, ROOT.

Other men control the actual necessities of life, of the table the beef, all the food, that the children must eat. Even the views of humanity, gambling at the race tracks, the whiskey, the tobacco and the worst of drugs, are part of the present system of monopoly Trust control.

The power of Trust owners over the lives and prosperity of the citizens, AND OVER GOVERNMENT ITSELF, has recently been proved absolutely and shockingly in the revelations of the Roosevelt-Harriman scandal, AND IN THE CONFESSIONS THAT ROOSEVELT MADE OVER HIS OWN SIGNATURE IN HIS SHAMEFUL LETTER TO HARRIMAN, THE RAILROAD BOSS. HARRIMAN GAVE ROOSEVELT A QUARTER OF A MILLION.

Here is Roosevelt's letter that you may read it.

of the policy holders of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, AND EVERY DOLLAR OF THAT MONEY WAS STOLEN. Fifty thousand dollars in cash Harriman took from his own pocket and gave to the President. One hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars was contributed by the Vanderbilts and by other corporation influences.

And in return, you see the President of the United States, who

"Personal.

"My Dear Mr. Harriman: A suggestion has come to me in a roundabout way that you do not think it wise to come on to see me in these closing weeks of the campaign, but that you are reluctant to refuse, inasmuch as I have asked you.

"Now, my dear sir, you and I are practical men, and you are on the ground and know the conditions better than I do.

"If you think there is any danger of your visit to me causing you trouble, or if you think there is nothing special I should be informed about, or no matter in which I could give aid, why of course give up the visit for the time being, and then a few weeks hence, before I write my message, I shall get you to come down to discuss certain government matters not connected with the campaign.

"With great regard, sincerely yours,

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

That letter signed by Roosevelt, admitted by him to be genuine, tells to Americans the entire story of government control and legislative corruption by great Trust owners.

Here in the President's own handwriting, signed by him, you have this message addressed to Harriman, the head of the great road Trust.

"A few weeks hence BEFORE I WRITE MY MESSAGE, I shall get you to come down to discuss certain government matters not connected with the campaign."

The man to whom this letter was sent by the President of the United States GAVE TO ROOSEVELT AT ROOSEVELT'S REQUEST, TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS. This enormous contribution given to Mr. Roosevelt in one's note campaign was only one of many similar contributions.

This money given to Mr. Roosevelt by the head of the Railroad Trust was contributed EXCLUSIVELY BY TRUST OWNERS, excepting twenty-five thousand dollars that came out of the pockets GETS the quarter of a million he wanted from the Trust owner, inviting the Trust owner, Harriman, to come down and blue pencil his message!

What chance have the people under such conditions as these? What possibility is there of putting an end to Trust government? WHEN YOU ALLOW THE TRUSTS TO ROB YOU, and the President allows the Trusts to buy him?

If Harriman can take five millions from the people of the United States, or fifty or a hundred millions, as he has done, and then for a miserable quarter of a million BUY THE RIGHT TO KID THE PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE, what chance have the PEOPLE? Or in Harriman's own words, "Where do they stand?"

It is a big problem which this picture of the actual conditions in America presents. It is a problem that the American people have got to solve by energetic action at the polls.

They have got to make up their minds not to have in office men who, like Roosevelt, get enormous sums of money from Trust owners, AND BARGAIN WITH THOSE TRUST OWNERS AS TO WHAT THEY SHALL GET IN RETURN.

The people have the positive proof that Roosevelt went to Harriman for cash. They do not know how much he got from Ryan and other men, BUT THEY DO KNOW FROM HARRIMAN'S AND ROOSEVELT'S CORRESPONDENCE THAT HARRIMAN WAS JEALOUS OF RYAN, EVEN MORE POWERFUL, AND PRESUMABLY MORE LIBERAL THAN HARRIMAN.

The people know, thanks to the revelations in the Roosevelt-Harriman scandal, that Root stands at the head of the United States Government, dictating to the President, AS THOMAS F. RYAN'S REPRESENTATIVE.

In a scramble to buy control of the President and of the Government it is clear that Harriman did his best. He raised his quarter of a million as soon as Roosevelt asked for it. He probably would have raised more.

We don't know what RYAN did, or what HE raised. But in any case, he got ahead of Harriman. And the invitation to come on and blue pencil the message was one of the last friendly signs that Harriman got in return for his money.

What are the other Trust people doing? What, especially, Ryan, the most cunning of all the money kings of this country, doing with the Government? How is he able to take Elihu Root the Trust lawyer, the Ryan lawyer, and make him Secretary of State? It is the man, as proved in Ryan's sworn testimony in the life insurance investigation, who acted as Ryan's legal, protecting his deal in getting control of the Equitable Life Insurance Company? What business has the paid agent of the criminal Tweed, such a man as Elihu Root, as Secretary of State, when his pockets are full of the money of Tweed and of Ryan?

These are the questions for the people to ask. They must cut across this long line of Trust owners who are really OWNERS OF THE NATION. They must realize that the Government impersonated by Uncle Sam looks on helplessly and can do nothing.

The first must study, with intelligence, and with ever increasing indignation, that Harriman-Roosevelt scandal, THE SHAMEFUL LETTER OF ROOSEVELT'S IN WHICH HE BARKERS THE RIGHT TO EDIT HIS MESSAGE FOR A QUARTER OF A MILLION OF TRUST DOLLARS.

Then they must make up their minds FOR THEMSELVES what to do.

They must not have the Roosevelt type of hypocrite in the White House, for one thing. They must not have as the head of this nation a man who gets enormous sums of money from Trust owners, for they know WELL THAT THERE IS A BARGAIN BACK OF EVERY SUCH EXULTATION.

Harriman, Ryan and such men do not give their millions for nothing. This problem of the Trusts, this problem of the BUYING OF THE PRESIDENT, and with confusion contributions, is the people's problem, AND THEY MUST SOLVE IT.

Our Own Jerry Farrar

Looking back over the past season's work as one musical indication we would say was naturally about the same. There are new reputations being made and here my old reputations have brightened or tarnished?

Quite as a matter of course, the rise and fall of popularity has been the rule. Farrar of Midway, we regard as the most popular singer of the week and Monday.

BOSTON MEN ACT

Secure 40 Acres at Goldfield Including a Gold Ribbed
MountainENGINEER FINDS GOLD
EVEN ON SURFACE

A close syndicate of Boston business and professional men have secured 40 acres, including a gold-ribbed mountain, of mineralized property, three miles and a half from the Goldfield depot, almost within the heart of the famous ten-mile gold district, which last year produced more than twenty-five million dollars in gold from Mother Earth, and surrounded by rich gold mines and properties.

This property is a portion of the celebrated Fredonia Group, in the Montezuma Range, located on the same vein as the great Montezuma Mine, which has yielded more than seven million dollars in gold, and which still contains fabulous wealth.

On one side of our property is the great "Bohannon" group, which is being worked by the famous Bohannon, which is already yielding gold ore running fifty dollars to the ton.

Within this district and near our property is the famous Mohawk, which has produced in the past year increased in value from ten cents to over twenty dollars each.

A syndicate of Pueblo, Colo., citizens are working the remaining claims of the Fredonia Group which we do not control.

Work upon our property will be begun at an early date, as soon as the financing of the proposition will warrant.

The organization of the New England Goldfield Mining Company is now progressing to an end. Organization stock is selling at $10.00 per share.

This is the last opportunity which will be offered to purchase this stock at this price. As soon as the organization is perfected, which has succeeded more time than any other organization, upon the announcement of the name of the strong business and professional men who will form the same, the treasury stock of the company will be offered to the public at not less than twenty cents a share, and it will immediately increase to thirty, forty, fifty, sixty, seventy, or par ($100), according to the success of the finding.

Here is an opportunity to invest a small amount of money with prospects of tremendous profit. If you had purchased 1,000 shares of this stock at $10.00 per share, you would have $10,000.00. If you had purchased 1,000 shares of this stock at $10.00 per share, you would have $10,000.00. If you had purchased 1,000 shares of this stock at $10.00 per share, you would have $10,000.00.

over for the joint Judiciary Committee by Representative Charles J. Wicker of Lowell. It is of the quiet, "sh, sh" variety that characterized activity against the bill in the Legislature of a year ago just before the breaking of the "bribery scandal" and the expulsion of Representative Frank J. Dilliro.

There were a few signs of the lobby of Boston Hill this year. Those who sought to know say that interested persons learned a lesson from the scandal of 1907 and that they attempted to put away the "sh, sh, sh" of the lobby.

It is expected the bucket shop in New York will make their first in the city and in sight of all new money to be reported to tomorrow is practically the Logan bill of 1904. Senator Edward J. Logan is now an associate justice of the South Boston District Court. He appeared before the committee this year to support the merits of the bill and the sins of the bucket shop. Congressman Andrew J. Peters conducted the hearings for the pet farmers.

The one new feature of this year's fight is the presence among the fighters of the

URGE TRUTH BE SPOKEN

Investigators Named by Bishop Lawrence Call for United War on Crime.

THE COMMITTEE on Public Morality in the city of Boston and the State of Massachusetts—appointed last May by Bishop Lawrence at the annual diocesan convention of the Episcopal church, which met in Trinity Church—have printed their report, containing in detail the extent of the evil conditions of society in Boston and elsewhere. This report will be read in public at the forthcoming annual convention in May in Trinity Church.

Important and startling in its findings, the report is a sweeping and apparently most reliable revelation of the state of affairs in the city of Boston and elsewhere. The committee, which has been investigating the conditions of society in Boston and elsewhere, has found that the state of affairs is most deplorable. 'NO EXTRA TRAINS NEEDED'

Blames Merchants for Delay in Getting Goods Out from Trains After Arrival.

THE demand of hundreds of business men that the railroad should have the freight congestion now paralyzing trade and relegating Boston to the rear as a port is answered today in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN by Vice President T. E. Byrnes of the New Haven road, who tells what, in his opinion, should be done for Boston.

Mr. Byrnes declares that his company is determined to give Boston merchants the best of service and says that a large number of extra freight handlers have already been employed in effect to end it. He asks that business men co-operate with the railway officials, and urges that they remove merchandise from cars at the end of four days, instead of holding it there from a five to seven days, as is often the case.

In a statement to the AMERICAN Mr. Byrnes says:

"No Extra Trains Needed."

"If Boston merchants are willing to have free storage cut to four days we will be glad to provide 'tailboard' delivery at the freight house, which will cost the road $100,000 a month than at present.

"If no extra trains are needed, the road will be glad to get its share of the business. The road will be glad to get its share of the business. The road will be glad to get its share of the business.

ASK BACHELOR TO DISASTROUS TIE UP HAS STAY PRINCIPAL AT DUMMER. ROUSED WRIGHTY PROTEST FROM BOSTON MERCHANTS

Professor Soon to Wed and Academy Faculty Strike Legislation Urged to Force Better Freight Service from the Railroads.

RE-ELECTED BY THE BOARD
All the Old Editors Ready to a Little More of School Resigned.
TRUSTEES DENY REPORTS
Byfield School Has Prospered Greatly Under His Leadership.

A COORDINATING statement made last night to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN by James Hardie Rogers of Cambridge, president of the board of trustees of Dummer Academy, in reply to Prof. E. Ryther, alone of the trustees, will remain master of the famous old school another year.

"As a special meeting of the trustees held to consider the subject, Professor Ryther was asked to continue in his position of master another year," said Mr. Rogers. "This answer has not yet been received."

It is known that Prof. Ryther has been asked to continue in his position of master another year, and that the trustees have decided to re-elect him.

Mr. Ryther Soon to Wed.
The wedding of Prof. Ryther and Miss Mary E. Ryther, daughter of the late Mr. Ryther, will take place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ryther, at 100 North Street, on Wednesday, April 10, at 2 o'clock.

Faculty Ready to Strike.
The faculty of the Dummer Academy are ready to strike if the trustees do not re-elect Prof. Ryther as master.

Unpleasantness Denied.
The trustees of the Dummer Academy deny the report that there is any unpleasantness between them and the faculty.

One of the trustees of the Dummer Academy, Mr. E. Ryther, has been asked to continue in his position of master another year.

Mr. Ryther's Position.
Mr. Ryther's position as master of the Dummer Academy is a very important one, and he is well qualified to fill it.

A Noted Institution.
The Dummer Academy is a noted institution, and has a long and successful history.

SYMPHONY GIVES AMERICAN MUSIC

New Composition by Brockway and MacDowell's Indian Suite Received with Enthusiasm.

BOTH ARE GREAT WORKS

By Kent Perkins.
It was both refreshing and gratifying to find that the national prize for the best composition in American music, the Brockway and MacDowell's Indian Suite, was received with such enthusiasm.

The Brockway and MacDowell's Indian Suite is a work of great merit, and it is a pleasure to find that it has been so well received.

Employment Agency Starts Romance Which Grows as Typist Clicks Keys.

PLAN FOR JUNE NUPTIALS

As an employment agency, written contract
A romance which grew as a typist clicked her keys, and a lawyer wrote his name to the contract, is the story of the engagement of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Smith.

The romance of the typist and the lawyer is a story of love and devotion, and it is a pleasure to find that it has been so well received.
